

May 21, 1975

SPEAKER: Chair recognizes Senator Lewis.

SENATOR F. LEWIS: Mr. Chairman, I thought this was a great idea about an hour ago when we would have had the time to do it, but if there are a few little things we can do till 5 o'clock, I would suspect that's about the time we've got to adjourn. We can do those kind of things and then read tomorrow. If we can't read tomorrow today, we're not really gaining much by 15 or 20 minutes. We got cleanup work to do. I'd suggest we do that and then read the bills tomorrow.

SPEAKER: There's a motion before the House. Do you want to proceed with your motion, Senator Nichol? The question before the House ... Senator Dickinson, for what purpose do you arise?

SENATOR DICKINSON: Mr. Speaker, we've had no indication till now, at least ... if we did I didn't know it, that we were going to be expected to be back here tonight. I've been at every night session we've had in the three years I've been down here, but I cannot come back tonight. I think there are many more that cannot. If there are 25 here that's fine. It's immaterial to me. But you better find out if there's going to be 25 here. OK.

SPEAKER: Chair recognizes Senator Cal Carsten.

SENATOR CARSTEN: Mr. President, point of information.

SPEAKER: Proceed.

SENATOR CARSTEN: The last bill that we advanced to engrossing, what is the estimated time of the return of that bill to this body? What did Mr. Burnett say?

SPEAKER: LB 600, is that what you refer to?

SENATOR CARSTEN: I'm not sure what the last one was. I don't remember what the last one was.

SPEAKER: The last one we discussed on this floor, on Select File, was 600. When Emory Burnett was here a few moments ago reading the last two bills he indicated there was about two hours of work left. At that time it was about 4:15. I suppose we must be ... he said he would attempt to do it. So it would be 6:15 to 7 o'clock, somewhere in that area, before those bills could be returned up here.

SENATOR CARSTEN: Then my next question, Mr. Speaker, would be that even if we stayed in session we could not take care of that before this commitment that some of the body has made to the dinner this evening. Is that what you're really saying?